I will check with him. Evolution can and should be taught as it always has and can be tested. It is a scientific theory that does not have to take the place of creationism.

hey,

a parent recently contacted me about the content of Mr. Lyons' Western Civ history classes. He is teaching the theory of evolution as part of the curriculum and testing the students on this material. I know he has different beliefs when it comes to creation but what does this have to do with Western Civ other than promoting his atheist worldview?
